REGION

Eden Valley - South Australia

South Australia's beautiful Eden Valley, known as the garden of grapes and gums, is one of Australia's premier cool climate wine regions characterised by its rugged beauty and varied topography.

The rolling hills of the region create a natural diversity in mesoclimate determined by altitude, aspect and slope, which also naturally impacts the soil type. Overall the region is characterised by cooler conditions than its famous neighbour, the Barossa Valley, and as such the final stages of ripening and harvesting take place in cooler temperatures.

The number of wineries in Eden Valley is small but the region has a significant influence on Australian winemakers. Eden Valley wines are distinctive in their character, displaying wonderful aromatics, elegance, complexity and finesse.

WINERY

Yalumba

The Yalumba Wine Company is the most historic family owned winery in Australia, established in 1849.

Yalumba's magnificent estate is located near the town of Angaston, a scenic one-hour drive from Adelaide. Oak barrels, family artefacts and artworks line the walls of the famous Wine Room where passionate Wine Room Ambassadors introduce visitors to the wines and many stories of Yalumba.

The landscaped grounds overlooked by the historic clock tower set the perfect scene to enjoy a picnic of local produce in the warm Barossa sun. Yalumba is the only winery in Australia and one of a few worldwide to craft their own oak barrels onsite. This allows the winery to have complete control of the quality of the oak in which the wines age and contributes to the distinct characteristic its wines. During the week, visitors can explore the cooperage on a self-guided tour, smell the woody scent and see the coopers in a workshop that dates back to the late 1800s.
